pointed to consider a list of questions on financial problems which shall be sent to experts throughout the country, have before them as a suggestion a list of 20 questions, drafted by Hiltcock.

Questions to Be Asked.

Among the questions submitted by Hiltcock are:

"What are the chief purposes to be attained in an improved banking and currency system?"

"Should the Federal reserve be extended after its expiration in 1914? If so, should it be amended?"

"Should the present requirement of reserves for national banks be reduced or otherwise changed?"

"Should the present currency by permanent or temporary?"

"Should individual banks or central associations issue the additional currency?"

"If graduated, should it be an time or quantity?"

As to Reserve Associations.

"Should a central control of reserve associations be established either by them or by the government, or both?"

"Should reserve associations be stock companies?"

"Should there be one central reserve association or a number, and if the latter, how many?"

"What should be the limit in amount of such additional currency?"

"Should reserve associations accept reservation. We just discussed it in a friendly way.

"I think I have been up and down that street twice in three days."

Couldn't Tell What He Saw.

"Tell of the nights you saw."

This was objected to. The objection was sustained.

The witness stated that for a long time he had been agent of the place at 401 Broadway.

Police Gives Evidence.

Friday morning Claude Smith, special officer of the police department, who had the Broadway beat at one time, testified that he was acquainted with the property on the northeast corner of Second and Broadway.

"At the time I was down there," the witness said, "the rooms were occupied. I don't know who was paying the rent. There were women in there. I can't describe their dress. I suppose I have seen men go in there."

The witness said the occupants of the places were prostitutes. He knew Vidal. Vidal had a saloon on the corner of Second and Broadway. The witness said, "I have seen him there often. I generally saw him early in the morning. On cross examination the witness said that he could not testify of his own knowledge that the saloon was Vidal's. The witness said he did not know the name of the woman occupant. Smith was the first witness Friday morning.

J. F. Coles was recalled to locate on a map the property in question. A. S. Vidal was called to testify as to a map he had made of the district.

Policeman Knows Very Little.

Sergeant G. E. Fletcher, who, before his appointment, was a Broadway patrolman, described the property at Second and Broadway. He said he had been an officer on Broadway for the past four or five years. In February, 1915, he said he had seen women in the "cribs." He had seen them in the "cribs" with the women. The women occupants of the places, he said, sat so they could be seen by anyone passing. "Do you know of any woman down there pursuing an honest vocation?" Mr. Price asked.

"Well the other day I saw one making dresses and one crocheting pillow tops. I don't know," the witness said, "whether they kept that up for a living or not."

ing rates in excess of the maximum mentioned.

A general washing of the corporation commission's linen is likely to result.

House Nearly Through.

While the senate struggled with lengthy bills yesterday, the representatives sat around and told stories. The house was right up with its work. It had nothing to do after a short session in the morning, until the middle of the afternoon. Then the senate sent over a few bills and a committee of the whole meeting was held.

There were two or three senate bills yet to be acted on but they were in committee and printed or typewritten copies had not been furnished. The clerks of the enrolling and engrossing committee had their hands full.

Committees to confer on the expediting of business were appointed in the two houses. The senate committee is composed of C. B. Wood, Roberts and Hochman, while Jacobs, Lynch and Craig represent the house. It is expected that the committees will bring in some kind of a report today.

Only by a miracle can the legislature finish Saturday night. If there is nothing else to prevent adjournment at that time it will be conference. It appears to be fairly certain that the legislature will not adjourn till Tuesday evening, when the appropriation for this session expires.

ALASKAN GOLD SEEKERS

VICTIMIZED BY INDIANS. Seattle, Wash., May 6.—British Columbia Indians have unloaded upon American and Canadian gold seekers, stories of claims without a trace of "color."

It develops that the recent "stampede" to the Tostin country, of British Columbia, was engineered by red men who cleared many thousands of dollars through their trickery.

John G. Johnson, one of the discoverers of gold in Nome and an Alaskan multi-millionaire brought news from the north that not a sign of gold has been found in the Silver-creek district, all of which was staked by Indians and sold to white men.

State manager C. F. McDuffy, of the Modern Brotherhood of America, will be entertained by El Paso lodge No. 217, in the K. of P. hall, on Saturday, the 10th of May. All the members are cordially requested to attend, and the members of the East El Paso lodge and the members of other lodges sojourning in El Paso are invited to meet with us. Hours open at 7:30 p. m.
